Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

In the August 13, 1973 issue of U.S. News & World Report is an article covering the activities and operations of an organization known as "Ambudsmen" (a swedish word meaning Agent of Justice), which is in operation throughout the U.S. and the world for the aid and benefit all citizens.

It is a group that may be called "Question and Answer Department" for a community, to which a citizen may go with all questions and complaints as to why, when, how, etc, at no expense to the citizen. It should be non-political.

To fully understand the meaning of the article, it is recommended that every citizen of Appomattox county secure a copy of the article by buying, borrowing, etc.

It has been suggested that the Farm Bureau, the Jaycees or Ruritans, or all three, are ideally fitted for the sponsorship of inaugurating such an important addition to the county.

I have been in contact with citizens of all walks of life and not one has been able to find one objection to the establishment of "Ambudsmen" for Appomattox County.

It is hoped that every citizen of Appomattox County, after thoroughly reading and understanding the above mentioned article, will let his or her wished be known, especially to his newspaper, preferably by letter.

TO THE PARENTS OF APPOMATTOX COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for all your cooperation in the opening of the High School this year. Although I am new to Appomattox I am most happy to say that the hospitality in the community has been just great.

I already feel that I have been in Appomattox quite some time due to the pleasant atmosphere in the community. Becoming a part of this community has been indeed a pleasant venture. I say "thank you" to the parents not because I have met all of you but because I have had the opportunity to meet many of your sons and daughters. It is very obvious to me that these young people come from homes with parents who have been directly involved in their development. I am sure that as the school year passes there will be questions that you as parents might have concerning the High School. Please do not hesitate at any time to call or come by to speak to me. It would be my pleasure.

I might add that I have been most impressed by the Athletic Program at the High School. I have found that the coaches are truly teachers, providing not only leadership in the development of athletic skills but leadership in providing the attitudes and values of life that will remain with these students long after their playing days are over. I feel the highest asset of this school is that the entire staff is sincerely concerned with the development of values in our students.

With your continued help and cooperation I am sure Appomattox will move in a positive and constructive direction. We are in the planning stages of many new programs and activities that will begin this year and continue into the new high school next year. We hope you will become involved with us.

Again, thank you. See you in school or at the games.

Sincerely,
Cecil B. Tillery, Principal
Appomattox C. H. School

P.S. I would like to give special thanks to a family who lives right up the hill from my apartment. They have been highly instrumental in helping me become a happy member of this community, and have indeed treated me as if I were a part of their family.

My copy of the article may be read here at any time by any one wishing to do so.

Receives Letter From French House Guest

In the August 23rd issue of the Times-Virginian we printed a picture and story about Andre Pasquie from Toulouse, France who had for six weeks been the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Coleman of Pamplin City.

On August 24th, Andre left from Norfolk for his home in Toulouse and to resume his studies in international law. Just before he left Norfolk, Mr. Coleman said they asked the young Frenchman if he was happy to be returning home and his answer was an emphatic "NO". In this one word, we consider that Andre spoke very highly of our United States and of the people he had met here.

The following is a letter the Colemans received from their young friend last week. Thought the readers of this newspaper would be interested.

August 27, 1973

Dear Mrs. Coleman,
Dear Mr. Coleman,

After a long and tiring trip by bus and by plane I am arrived in good conditions. My eye is now much better and I guess in two or three days it will be all right. Here it is hot and not as hot as in Virginia.

My stay in your farm was wonderful and I shall not forget it.

I can tell now my folks how much kind and friendly are the American people.

My parents were very proud when they could see me in the newspaper and read something about Mr. Coleman and me.

It is a big chance I had to come over and stay in your great country and I think it is a very enriching experience.

Everything I saw was exciting and quite interesting. I count many things about farming and history which I love.

When I shall go again at my law college I could explain my friends a little bit about the U.S.A. and their people.

As soon as I could I shall send to you some information about Toulouse and its countryside.

I thank you very much again for that nice stay on your farm . . . I enjoyed it very much.

Give my good feeling to all your friends I met.

Yours sincerely,
Andre Pasquie

The Sunday School Lesson

Comment on the International Sunday School Lesson for Sunday, September 16, 1973.

Topic: Unity at the Lord's Table.

Scripture: 1 Corinthians 11: 17-34.

For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes. 1 Corinthians 11:26.

Selection of the topic, "Unity at the Lord's Table," for this week's International Sunday School lesson runs counter to prevalent practice among Christians. For the various groups of Christians are as divided on the Lord's Supper as they are on any matter of faith and practice. The Supper means one thing to one group, another to another. Denominations differ in their beliefs as to what takes place in observing the Supper. Today's Christian Church is as factionated over the Lord's Supper, even in the names the different groups give it, as was the church in Corinth to which Paul wrote 19 centuries ago.

The earliest symbols of the Christian faith were not objects to be looked at or venerated, but in the two, baptism and the Lord's Supper, the believer acted out a representation of the Lord's death and in baptism of His resurrection also. Strange as it may seem, both these acted out symbols have become sources of division among Christians. In the Lord's Supper, the believer ate a piece of bread broken from the loaf as a symbol that the body of Jesus Christ was broken and drank wine in symbol that the blood of Jesus Christ had been shed in making the atoning sacrifice.

New Testament scholars are generally agreed that the earliest account of the institution of the Lord's Supper now know was that written by Paul in what we know as the First Letter to the Corinthians. Paul declared that he had received his information about the institution of the Supper, the commandment to observe it, and its meaning, from the Lord Himself. This account he gave to the Corinthian Christians, and presumably to believers in the churches which he established in other places, as he instructed them in Christian faith and practice.

The church in Corinth distorted and profaned the observance of the Lord's Supper. It seems to have combined the love feast, which it also distorted, with the Supper. In consequence what should have been a unifying, experience had become a divisive force in the fellowship. At the love feast the members of the church came together to eat, but then divided themselves into groups, according to economic and social status, with the result that the well-to-do enjoyed among themselves food and drink in abundance, while the poor, who had little to bring for themselves, went hungry. Paul rebuked such a practice, and the determination to prevent such a distortion of the Christian spirit may account for the abandonment of the love feast. (The love feast was revived by the Unitas Fratrum, popularly known as the Moravian Church, but the buns and coffee of the Moravian love feast are distributed as equitably to each participant as are the bread and wine to participants in the Lord's Supper in contemporary observance.)

Participation in the Lord's Supper should be one of the most refreshing and elevating experiences in the Christian's life today. By renewing Christ's sacrifice of Himself for all mankind, it should draw the individual's thoughts from himself and his mundane concerns to meditation upon what Christ has done for him and what he can do for Christ. Participation in the Supper should inspire reflection upon spiritual concerns and lift the participant to thoughtful and reverent communion with God.

To fail to make participation in the Lord's Supper the occasion for true communion with God is to observe it in an unworthy manner, which Paul declared profaned the body and blood of the Lord. There seems little hope that the various groups of Christians will in the foreseeable future come to uniformity in the manner of observing the Lord's Supper or to agreement as to what it is and signifies. But there can be unity in observing it in a worthy manner, in making participation a truly enriching spiritual experience.
